“ Hello Gorgeous,
I miss you so so very much! Not a day goes by that you are not in my head or my heart. Today marks 7 years since you have been gone and that feeling of an emptiness still lingers. I looked at a picture of you today and couldn't help but remember the smiles and laughter we shared, the stories you told and the poems and letters you wrote. You were someone, the only I could talk to about any feelings or problems. No matter how hard things got for you in the end you still had a smile on your face and true strength to get you through, until the day you could no longer be strong. I hold on to that strength you have passed down to me and with that I can handle anything that comes my way because of YOU. I know you are where you need to be, you are relieved of your pain and your own personal heartbreak. You are where your heart has always truly been and that is with the love of your life. That thought is truly comforting to me but it doesn't make the pain any easier to bare. The last days of your life are playing in my head on repeat and I sit and think that any amount of time with you was never enough. Christmas is not the same feeling anymore. As children growing up we had you and grandpa around on Christmas morning to share in the memories we made. Mom and dad have continued that tradition with each of their grand Kids, and I absolutely love that they do, those were the best times we could have ever asked for. The vacations and spring breaks we spent traveling with the two of are memories I will cherish for ever. I often sit and look at Landon and wonder what you would have thought about him but then he gets that smile on his face that just radiates joy and love and I see you and all those thoughts of doubt and second guessing pass. The only thing that ever meant anything to me was to make you happy and proud of me. I know you are watching over of us and I just hope I haven't disappointed you. The love I have for you will never fade no matter how many years go by. You are one my heart truly misses, my best friend. I love you so much. See you later alligator.

Love, Your Name Sake.
