“ Memories of James Homer eased through my mind as I read his obituary. He was a man that loved his mother. An interesting man as he was a good conversationalist. His first cousin, Billy Dean Simmons, and he could talk for hours..mainly about horses and lifelong memories of days gone past. Rounders they both admitted they were. Their conversations always ended about their children before their visit was over. Rest in peace James Homer. You were loved and will not be forgotten. Prayers of peace and comfort for Gloria, Evelyn, your children, and friends.
