“ Two memories stand out to me. One was the time that I said something about playing golf during a class I was teaching at Murray Street and she spoke up and said that she'd pay for my round of golf sometime if I'd just leave my kids with her while I played. She always made a point to speak to and love on my kids at church and I so appreciated that.

Another memory was just about all of my home visits with her and brother Jack. Any time brother Jack was wrong about something he had said, she would call him out on it. He would of course argue that he was right, but she stood her ground. Eventually, he'd admit that she was in fact the one who was right. She was such a wonderful lady!
