My grandmother, My Big Momma is what we called her. She had so much live for everyone. She was the strongest woman I knew. As I got older and learned more about her. I grew to have so much respect for her. She endured this world. She did it with a kind heart. As a young girl I made the mistake of getting pregnant a second time. I traveled down to see her and I laud in the floor when I got to her home. I was so tired of life. I said to her Big Momma, I'm so tired how do y'all do it? She said, Keep moving. I held on to those two words for life. She always acknowledged me. My accomplishments. The accomplishments of my children. She poured into my daughter ShiAnne over the years. I was so happy when my daughter at 13 ask to spend her summer with Big Momma just as I had spent my summers in Caldwell with her for so many years. Big Momma was the best momma. I will always love her. Always.
