“ Soo many memories which one the share... Man me and my sister are so alike in many, many ways.. we crazy no filters. Lol! My sister was an energetic soul. She loved jamming and dancing. She was one of the loudest people in the room and didn't care who was around. She made us laugh, she made us mad. I'm gonna miss asking for 5-O. I gonna miss her cussing the most! May she rest in heavenly peace give daddy a kiss for me! Keep my family in your prayers today.

“ Aunt Pauline I still remember you taking us to Sonic and us trying to get you to say cheese on the intercom. If you knew Pauline, she would say what was on her mind no matter where we were. Until she finally yelled out "just say the got damn shit " lol 😊.

We love you Aunt Pauline ❤️

“ I'm Paula's older sister. She was just 11 months younger than me. We share the same birthday month of August. Growing up Mom would dress us alike, everyone thought we were twins. We had a happy childhood growing up, always surrounded by cousins. When we lived in California, we were around 7 & 6 years old, Mom took us to the grocery store and Paula decided she was going to walk home. We frantically looked for her in and around the store and she was nowhere to be found. Had to call police. Come to find out she had walked home. The store wasn't far from the house. Boy, was our Daddy mad. Paula didn't know any strangers. She would walk up to people and just start talking and spilling the beans on what was going on. Sometimes she gave way to much information Lol. She would tell her stories with a lot of facial expressions and she made up her own spanglish words. Paula loved her kids in her own special way. She loved her grandchildren too. Danny & I would have to calm her down when she would get too excited. She listened to us. We are going to miss her so much. We already do. Rest easy sister and until we meet up in heaven. Love you. Darlene
