When I was little, I would often ask Apa, where are we going? His response would be , "pa Inglaterra." I thought he was making it up at the time because that was his response every time we went some where. ...as I grew older I decided to investigate this matter. It turned out he was not making it up. He was talking about England. Although we never went there, it was fun to travel with him. Who knew. Miss and love you my dear Apa.
