Tribute Wall

“ One of a kind. A stalwart supporter of arts and culture in Houston and a wildcat entrepreneur in the best tradition of this city. The family Crenshaw Beach bungalow, wiped out by Hurricane Ike, hosted many a memorable get-together, where Ted helped me appreciate the joys of fishing and birdwatching. The roadbed of the defunct Bolivar train to Beaumont ran right behind the property and seemed to connect Ted to his roots. A long tall Texan to whom the Stetson really meant something. Happy Trails, Ted.

“ Dear Dorothy, Scott, Page, and Lisa, We send our heartfelt condolences and love. Words can't adequately convey the depths of our feelings and love for your dear son and brother.

Ted was a treasured friend and an exceptional, caring, and unique person. We shared so many special occasions and good times and are heartbroken at his loss. The memories of him and our times together we will cherish and he will always remain in our hearts. We pray that God's love and the assurance that we will be together again will give you comfort and peace in the days ahead. God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. We will all need his mercies and faithfulness in the coming days. You will be in our hearts and prayers. With deepest sympathy, Sally and Ed
