I remember taking Williebald water when he was out in the field plowing. It was a big mason jar in a wet burlap sack which made it cool. I was about 6. Later on in my teens Williebald went to work with us hanging sheetrock, man that guy was strong. He had big hands then too already. Always very quiet and soft spoken. Williebald was a good man who stayed home and cared for his mom and dad. I regret getting sick and not making the funeral and will remember him how I knew him.

God bless

“ Jemiah only met Williebald twice, but was very sad last night when we learned the news of his passing. He remembered him as the kind man with the great big hands. So glad my wife and kids got the chance to meet him. He is missed here, but in the best place now.
